

Summary CV

Prof. Dr. Gonzalo León

PhD on Telecommunication Engineering in 1982

Academic level: Full Professor of the Telematics Engineering Department at the Universidad Politécnica de Madrid since 1991.

Present position: Vice President for Research at the Universidad Politécnica de Madrid since 2004.

Research activities: software engineering for telecommunications systems and on IT technology transfer with several telecom companies. Principal researcher in several R&D projects in the EU Framework Programme, EUREKA, and National R&D Plan on ICT.

Relevant positions in the Spanish Administration of Science and Technology s: Deputy General Director for international relations on R&D (1996-1998), as Deputy General Director at the Office of Science and Technology attached to the Presidency of the Government (1998-2000).

Secretary General for Science Policy at the Ministry of Science and Technology as responsible for the National R&D Plan and International Relations (2002-2004);

Chairman of several high level expert groups at the European Commission: Chairman of the Follow up of the Lisbon Strategy Group and Vice Chairman of the Space Advisory Group.

Member of the Board of Trustees: several foundations and companies, and member or President of several advisory committees in Spain.